

Money and Spirituality

Is the number 13 unlucky and Friday the 13th particularly so? No, this was a well-executed plot by the church to upset our natural resonance and put us out of sync with nature. If we shifted back from 12 to 13 we'd all become more intuitive in a short period of time...

Can the stars foretell your future? On the basis that you believe they are more powerful than you, yes they can, because your belief will have empowered them to do so.

Do all of those channelled, non-physical beings, have greater insights to future events than the rest of us? Having read a lot of this repetitive trash over the years, I would say they would probably get it right some of the time, like the rest of us.

So what about MONEY? Is it the root of all evil? No – it's just energy. A person's attitude towards money determines their relationship with it. For example, if you make money your god and you believe there is a limited supply then you'll probably try to CONTROL the whole world by all means to get a bigger share of the pie. Such is the backward consciousness of the current world leadership.

Is money the cause of corrupt politicians and bankers? No GREED is.

Does one have to work hard to gain plenty? No – there's no correlation between hard work and being rich. Millions of people work hard everyday for a pittance! And there are the 'privileged ones' who swan around spending huge amounts of public money and further their business interests with it. There was never a mandate for hard work, only one for creativity...

Money and Spirituality can go hand in hand because money is just another aspect of Spirit (energy); it is your attitude toward it (the energy you give to it) that counts. One thing is for sure – no matter how much of it you accumulate, it will NEVER make you secure; for only YOU can do that! Neither can people, places or things ever make you secure...

A whole dogma has grown up around 'spirituality' and there are many who like the image of being 'spiritual' because it makes them feel superior and they like the way others speak well of them.

As I've said many times before, you can make an image out of anything and in doing so empower that role. You can literally entangle your god in any conceivable way...

So what is it to be spiritual? It is simply having the understanding of your true nature and living in accordance with that. It really has nothing to do with religion or any cult.

Mass is simply a manifestation of Spirit. We are 'spirits in the material'. And EVERYTHING is a manifestation of the spiritual essence. To recognise a beautiful flower is self-recognition...

My partner and I are now dog owners and in an effort to become accomplished in that role, we frequently watch the Dog Whisperer with Caesar Milan. It's interesting because 90% of the problems Caesar encounters are the result of owners treating their dogs like humans. Caesar is a master at rehabilitating dogs, which have become the way they are due to their owners treating them like humans. In order for Caesar to solve the given situations he has to educate and train the mindsets of the dog owners.

An understanding of the ANIMAL and what it needs to be balanced, enables one to be a successful pack leader; whereas, mistreating the dog (by trying to humanise it) only serves to empower the dog and causes the inappropriate behaviour. Caesar gives us a great example because not only is he the pack leader of 47 tasty dogs but he also trains other owners to become like he is – a pack leader.

In the same way, if people knew the truth about themselves, they would LEAD their own lives and stop following others down blind alleys...

A teacher is only worth their salt if they empower their students by teaching them to become 'pack leaders'; whereas, a teacher who proliferates a false self-identity in order to increase the size of their own pack, is fundamentally flawed and has fallen into the trap of seduction – a powerful place to be and a difficult hole to climb out of.

Be in no doubt about who and what you are and live in accordance with that principle. You are spirit. You cannot really be anything other than what you really are, except of course in your own mind. So where is the aberration? Where is the separation? It's all in your mind... Hold your hands out in front of you with your palms facing each other and apart. Now bring your palms together and at the same time unify your mind with what you really are. That is how close you are to the most sublime truth...
