

Happy New Year 2022!

The way to become happy and joyful is to ignore all the shit happening around you. Give to Caesar what is Caesars, said the great master. My Kingdom is not of this World.

I don't want you to worry. What happens here is not as important as what happens beyond here. You are an eternal being – please remember that. If you contemplate that you'll realise there's really nothing to worry about.

You only have one decision to make – do you want to keep your memory or not? Either way, you always retain the wisdom in your Soul.

If you'd rather start a fresh without any hindrance from past memories, you'll jump straight into the Light and let them feast upon your latest life here. It's risky but hey there's a slim chance this World will be a more loving environment by the time you get back here. It's only a very slim chance tho, because the current projectory is headed in the opposite direction. Of course you could say that you might not come back here, but there's a question mark over whether you'll have any say in that!

There's always a glitch in the Matrix and some have come back with past life memory – it's patchy though. They were simply not stripped completely last time around.

I pose a great question. Many are burdoned by their memories in this life – how would they cope with those same memories in their next life as a baby cyborg?

The decision is yours, whether you like it or not. You will either go to the Light or you won't.

To me, if you are caught up in memory, it is showing you what you need to own in your Soul – so it's a valuable asset to you and an unobvious opportunity. I would never want to lose my memory.

I am at a place now in my life where I've realised that I can't really help people any more, beyond what I've already written down in the last 25 years... You can lead a horse to water but you can't make it drink, is a very true statement.

You are a Sovereign being – a god or a goddess in sheep's clothing (a limited genetic garment). You empower yourself or give your power away by how you choose to think and the decisions you make. If you think you're 'less' than others or some others, then that's just your thinking – change it!

This World could finish tomorrow (if morons like Stoltenberg don't stop their threatening behaviour towards Russia & China). But the future for you goes on and on and on...

You are conscious energy and that can never be killed. The question is never your existence; it's how you want to live and whether you're designing that life, here and now for all eternity. How do you want to live going into the future?

Past memory or not? Loving environment or not? Equality for all or not? Soul advancement or not?

This is a great time to 'remember the future' (we're at the beginning of a New Year) and see it now. Let's design from the truth – that we are eternal beings. As such, let's not include a particular planet in our design (why would we want a dystopian future?); but let's understand that our new homes will match our evolving consciousness and we are destined to only live in truthful, loving, places.

If the World ends tomorrow or the masses stay asleep, I'll see you there one day ~ Gary Bate.