

6 months 2 years 5 years 10 years 30 years 100 years – what does it matter? Life is eternal and those who die get reborn as sure as night follows day...

We make such a big deal about killing people but they'll pick up another body in due course. Nothing ever really dies because you can't kill energy; you can only change its form...

If people knew that the difference between death and ascension is only a change of mind; maybe they'd start to show some interest.

This is nothing more than a death camp because everyone is waiting their turn. Can we not get out of this backwards mentality?

The people you are creating special memories with, will not remember you in the future because all memories are robbed by the overlords of this planet.

Why do you think the psychopaths have created the wars? Because they're minions of the energy vampires who are controlling this planet. Our fight isn't with each other; it's with the vampires...

They love chaos. They love war. They love rituals. They love sacrifice. They love fervent emotions. You are their slave. Why? Because you're emotional. Because you take sides. Because you buy into the illusion (you think you're your body).

Life is really very different to the conditioning you've been subjected to.

Remaining the captive of the 'Lords of the Light' is a choice every individual makes, albeit that the masses make that choice unconsciously because they're not ready emotionally to accept this.

To me there is only life and there is only the destiny we all create for ourselves. Mind IS Matter.

Shiva sits on the tiger – that's the clue. If you're going to keep your body; you're going to have to conserve its energy and the way you do that is to calm it down (stop the cellular firing/quenching).

Understand that everyone has 'mind parasites' that cause their mental aberration and emotions. What am I harbouring? That's a relevant question. You think they're just your thoughts? Think again...

So what's the journey? It's freeing up your mind. It's cleaning the decks. It's standing in the fire and watching it all burn away. It's all an illusion because you are eternal and so is everyone else...

It's not about life and death; it's about destiny. You're either a victim to it or you create your own.

I will never lose my memories because I am not at a place to where I will succumb to the energy vampires. They are only in my psyche for as long as I choose to tolerate them.

You have to get out of linear thinking and become dimensional in your thinking because what's really occurring is dimensional – multi-dimensional.

This is available to everyone with an internet connection. The current state of the World tells me that people prefer their own version of reality. That's their choice. My job is done.

As here as above in the Light (more extreme up there). You change yourself here and you change your destiny; it's that simple. Can you help others without their permission? No. But if you write it down, one day they might be ready to hear it and accept it ~ Gary Bate of whatstress dot com.