

Image Consciousness by Gary Bate

The 'image' loves importance and specialness, but it's illusory because it's all image. Remember, God is imageless and we're here to emulate God.

So we see that people are motivated by what makes them feel important or somehow special, compared to other people. Superiority complexes fall into the same category.

All images die, either in the person or the person dies because of them. If they die within the person, that person achieves self-mastery.

The true Spiritual journey is not to 'layer-on' more and more 'specialness & self-importance'; it is to break down all of those images.

What image(s) are you portraying to the World or trying to portray to the World?

You progress Spiritually when you fall on your own sword..

Imagine having a NOBODY identity; that would be you realising the truth ~ Gary.

<https://whatstress.com/>