

Imageless by Gary Bate

Through our evolution (involution) we acquired (accumulated) forms (images), the most gross of which, we have falsely identified with.

Are we the form(s)? Well yes, but we are really the imageless energy that the forms have been created from. We like to see pictures of our grossest form, yet we're not seeing what we really are.

Imagine if everyone was translucent and you could just make out their outline – just enough to hold a conversation with them. That would change everything and allow everyone evolve very easily.

Think about the fixation we have with the first chakra. That's gone without any images! If we want to own that one and move our energy higher, we simply have to put a stop to all images...

Yesterday, I wrote the short piece entitled 'Love may be the answer but you need to know the effect of love'. Love is the answer because only with self-love will we become imageless in our attitudes...

This is the evolutionary task we all face, albeit that I am now only just bringing it to light.

We shouldn't fear the fact that we are merely 'energy & consciousness' because everything is a form of energy and thus our bodies are mere accumulations to what we are. We should look after them...

But how far do we want to let our personal realisation go? Can we live in these gross bodies yet be imageless in our minds?

The evolutionary journey is moving one's kundalini energy from the consciousness of the lower 3 chakras to the consciousness of the the higher 4 chakras (the so-called higher self). The common aspect of the consciousness of the 3 lower chakras, is image – image consciousness.

Would you love the people in your life if you could only make out their outline? Maybe you'd love them more? What we really love is the 'unseen'.

Please scrutinise your life. You'll see that it's image-driven. What are you doing at the behest of other people? You can play the game or you can live the truth.

You're not going to get this from anyone else on the planet. That's not because it's complicated; it's actually very simple. Isn't it a fact that we've all become to complicated?

I promise you – you'll get more from this wee website (in terms of expanding your consciousness) than you'll get from spending your money on gurus and teachers of all descriptions...

I have put myself in an enviable position, because I can give unconditionally to whoever wants to read my material and it matters not to me whether you decide to invest in one of my books.

Spiritual growth, advancement, enlightenment, complete self-realisation, ascension, time-travel etc. is all about becoming IMAGELESS in your mind and your attitudes.

The less I associate with what I see in the mirror, the happier I become. To me, if we want to associate and identify with images, then we should do that with everything and everyone we see...

If we are 'energy & consciousness' in its purest aspect, then what aren't we? ~ Gary Bate.
