

Life by Gary Bate

There are people who study consciousness and there are organisations who explore consciousness. But what is that? Consciousness is LIFE and life is consciousness in motion. We are all studying life (consciousness) because we all bear witness to it.

Right now we have the World's Zionist leaders (Sunak & Starmer included) all standing up in support of a massacre of innocent men, women and children. That is the effect of their crippled consciousness (minds) and who they give allegiance to. Where is the love?

So your consciousness is the reason your body gradually decays and eventually dies, but if your consciousness (your mind) does that, can it not do the opposite and resurrect/rejuvenate your body?

Your answer to that means everything to you. It's the same as me asking, are you going to die?

If your answer to those questions is no and yes, then by your own mind, you cannot have any other destiny than death.

And yet you could just as easily answer those questions yes and no and by doing so create the possibility of a different destiny.

People have not understood that consciousness is everything and whatsoever they decide upon in their minds, they will get to live sooner or later...

With the necromancers biting at your heels, it takes a razor sharp mind to keep your body healthy.

We all have something to live for; it's the exploration and advancement of self.

So your body then is the blueprint of your mind. If you're out of balance in your body then you need different conclusions in your mind. Changing your mind is all it takes and that's your evolution.

If you only give yourself the 'decay & die' destiny, then what's the point to your life? The best these people can do is try to be remembered in some way; that's how crippled these people are.

Simply change your mind and open up a potentially new reality and destiny...

I know it's a big ask, but what have we all got to lose by taking death off the menu?

Now I know I'm different because nobody else talks like me, but please factor in that I've been pursuing self-development and personal growth for circa 45 years! It's all I really do....

I've written this to give you a choice – a choice that you probably didn't realise you'd got.

The one thing I've understood about consciousness and writing in this manner, is there's no going backwards. Once you've got the thought and it swims in your mind, you're changed for the better.

I only help about a dozen people a day, but that's everything to me. What will those numbers be tomorrow? Mighty Oaks – from little Acorns grow...

You may not know it but we're in a fight; it's a fight with DEATH. The necromancers in the Light are the enemy and we are here to rise up and watch their Matrix crumble... ~ Gary Bate.
