

Schools of Thought by Gary Bate

Tyranny is the scourge on this planet and in my mind it's also the scourge in the Light. When faced with tyranny one has only one choice – stand up to it and empower yourself or acquiesce and be the victim. There are no other choices...

Moving beyond tyranny & victimisation is then refusing to sit in either of those powerful seats. Victims can derive raw power from playing the victim. Tyrants are just addicted to control.

The destiny of a person is self-ordained and it's not so much whether you die or not, or whether you go to the Light or not, or whether you re-incarnate or not; it's about where your level of consciousness takes you...

If you are loving and virtuous and noble, then the question of death and reincarnation is irrelevant, because your energy & consciousness will move you beyond this World and its mirror in the Light.

So whether the Light is a trap or if it's whatever you want it to be or both, is only relevant to people who insist on being tyrants or victims.

There is a way of living where all fear goes out of the window and that is to be loving, virtuous and honourable. If we are this way, then we never fall victim (prey) to tyrants (predators).

There are different schools of the thought here. Some say that climate change is real and man-made. Some say it's a hoax. Some say that there's no unusual weather without geo-engineering.

Some say that mainstream media tells the truth and alternative media is disinformation or vice versa. Some say that democracy is real and the politicians have the ultimate power and others say they are pseudo-democracies and a hidden elite pull the strings...

For me, I know there are tyrants in my neighbourhood, tyrants who control this World and tyrants who control the Light. Your truth may differ to mine but I don't love you any less because of that.

I will not acquiesce to the demands of my neighbour. I will not acquiesce to the demands of a puppet government who wants to mask me, shut me up and invade my blood! And I will never again go to the Light to nourish those who control it. I will strive to be loving, virtuous and noble... It doesn't matter how long it takes me (it's my clear intent that counts).

How we are determines where we go. There are countless options in higher consciousness and very few options for those who play the victim or the tyrant.

If you're waking up in the morning and you're feeling great then you must be doing something right – keep doing it! If you're waking up feeling lethargic, don't despair, you're bringing energy home.

The illusion of the clock is not our friend, because it stresses us and makes us both tyrants and victims, even when we can see it in us. We must chill and be patient and accept the situations we have placed ourselves in.

I am happy that I have expressed my truth over the last 30 years, but I concede that it is just my truth and that it may not be exactly how things are. Nevertheless, I believe it's important to not only express one's truth but to live truth to it. Of course, again, that's just my truth ~ Gary Bate.

<https://www.whatstress.com/>