

Taking responsibility by Gary Bate

When my daughter was 4 (1996) she drew a picture for me upon a piece of card and she wrote the following words on it – TAKE RESPONSIBILITY DAD. At 4 years of age she knew more than me. If that's not being motivated by Spirit then I don't know what is.

27 years later, I am proud to say that I have finally taken responsibility. It was my dogs that did it. I absolutely love and adore them. I am always here for them. I look after them well. They are my mates. I won't even put them in kennels, but take them with me whenever I travel.

I tell you this because it's an example of real evolution, my evolution. Clearly I had a Spiritual encumbrance and I don't know how long I'd had it for (we carry forward unfinished business from past lives). Changing my mind/attitude was all I needed to do and thanks God I finally did it.

Taking responsibility for dependents (children & animals) is a very important Spiritual trait, but there's another responsibility and that's to yourself – to own your life, to be responsible for your mental & emotional states of mind, to strive to be self-sufficient, to work at completing your Soul and of course being responsible for what you create and do.

Here's another example of my evolution, which I share with you not for my benefit:

I've been running my website for donkey's years – it's been my window to the World. But I've now realised that it's not just been me wanting to share what I know for the possible benefit to others; there's also been an element of me wanting to be accepted by others. So in the Spirit of me 'owning my life'; I will not renew my web hosting package in September and tell you all this in case you want to copy or download any of my material.

I am a Spiritual person because I am the same as you and we are all Spiritual people in 'garments of limitation' (our bodies).

Taking responsibility is taking responsibility for what we are – Spirit. We are not human beings; that is the mind-control going on here. Human (body) behaviour is what we came here to experience but it's not what we are. We have to re-define ourselves with the correct identity – we are “Spiritual beings having Human experiences”.

I'm nobody's fan but I like the words: <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BHOevX4DIGk>

This really is fundamental and it's so very important because we can't really grow until we accept what we really are and define ourselves as such. Clarity not cloudy mumbo-jumbo.

When we're clear about what we are, we realise it's just about our attitude towards all life.

The universe is teeming with life and it's not all going to look pleasant to us, but life is life. Very soon, I believe, we will be welcomed into the 'grown up' galactic community; but first we must deal with tyranny – the tyranny running this World and the tyranny in our own lives.

There's individual evolution and there's collective evolution, but the latter is just the sum total of the former. We're all here to help each other and if you can't do any more than forward this then you've still done your bit. It really isn't about me and you; it's about the whole ~ Gary Bate.
